

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

To construct a path through a packet network from a source host address to a destination host address via at least one lower capacity link controlled by at least one admission control device, a list of other host addresses controlled by the admission control device is returned to permit reuse of part of the path with reduced signaling.